

Home for Aged Board Of Managers Present Its Annual Reports

Session of Home Explained By Officers of Board At Annual Meeting—Appreciation Expressed to Those Who Aided.

The annual meeting of the Board of Managers for the Home of the Aged was held at the Home January 22. Mrs. Lasher presiding. Annual reports were given and approved.

President, Mrs. Grover Lasher; vice-president, Mrs. F. W. Lasher; second vice-president, Mrs. J. H. Hardenbergh; third vice-president, Mrs. C. H. Glauze; recording secretary, Mrs. H. W. Harrison; corresponding secretary, Mrs. V. B. Wagoner; treasurer, Mrs. F. W. Lasher.

Annual Report of Secretary
The president and ladies of the Home, with three exceptions, the Board of Managers for the Home of the Aged, met regularly on the last Tuesday of each month. The January meeting always follows the annual meeting in October. The meeting was postponed for Mrs. Forsyth's funeral and again in November for Thanksgiving.

The year closes with 35 members of the Home. Last year we had 33 in the waiting list, six have entered the Home, others died or are being cared for by relatives, so our list now numbers 23.

Death has claimed five members of our genial house manager, Mr. Davis. After the death of Mrs. Davis his health failed most noticeably, but almost to the last, he was found at his desk trying to do for everyone and carry on as he had through his 35 years' service.

Mr. Parkes, husband of our most efficient and worthy matron, was put in a house manager and general assistant to the matron and is proving equally worthy and efficient.

Last February a canning kitchen was installed in the basement, through the kindness of many friends who brought fruits and vegetables this proved to be a busy and much needed addition.

Through the most able efforts of Mrs. W. A. Frey and Mrs. W. E. Simmons, the members of the Home and their outside friends, have enjoyed delightful, instructive and entertaining treats, social and religious. Mrs. Frey having charge of the social and Mrs. Simmons the religious. We are just grateful to all who have been willing to give of their time and talents.

During the summer several members of the Home were given delightful rides and tea parties were held at the Home by members of the board. These were most enjoyable. In September, through the courtesy of the Roosa Taxi Company, many were able to enjoy the NRA parade from Mrs. Warren's home.

The annual donation day was held October 18. The response was much smaller than other years, but we are most grateful to all who remembered the Home.

On Friday, December 8, occurred our annual fair. By the faithful and sincere cooperation of all, it netted $21.85. We are also most grateful to those who gave us assistance in advertising and other ways.

Christmas, like all holidays, was celebrated with true spirit. The Home is always beautifully decorated by members of the Home, Board of Managers and friends for each occasion and one cannot help but feel the spirit that prevails upon entering.

The Board of Managers wish to express their great appreciation to the doctors who serve the Home, and to the clergymen, who are always ready and willing to serve in every way, and to the public in general for every deed and thought that has benefited the Home.

To the Kingston Freeman and the leader, for their kindness and willingness in printing our notices and donation lists, we are especially grateful.

Respectfully submitted,
NELL K. HARRISON,
Secretary.

Governor Lehman Sends Plea To President To Continue CWA

Expresses Fear That Curtailment of the CWA Program Will Cause a Social and Economic Reaction—Declares New York State Financially Unable to Shoulder Burden That Has Been Carried By The CWA—Waiting For a Reply.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 23 (AP)—Expressed absorbed either by industry or the Federal public works program which will get underway in the summer.

"I feel so strongly that the discontinuance or substantial reduction of this program undertaken by the federal government might lead to serious social and economic consequences, that I feel it my duty to write you personally my views," the governor's letter said.

He explained last night that an order by Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator, affected 400,000 CWA workers in the state.

In order to conserve CWA funds, working hours in municipalities of over 2,500 population have been reduced from 30 to 24 hours a week, and in smaller communities from 30 to 15.

State Doing All Possible.
"As you know, the state of New York is already doing as much as it can," the governor wrote.

"It has been forced to take over a larger and larger part of the municipal expenditures because of the withdrawal of federal aid for home relief. As a result the state's share for home relief alone, it is estimated, will be at the rate of $6,000,000 a month for at least the next several months."

Governor Lehman also made public a letter sent by him to Mr. Hopkins on January 17.

"The unemployed of this state have been led to believe that they would be given continuing work by the federal government," he said in the letter to Mr. Hopkins.

The New York governor made public his two messages last night. He said he has had no answer yet from the White House.

On January 17 he wrote the President urging the CWA program be continued undiminished until the men now employed in this manner

Wicks Introduces Bill to Improve Catskill Mt. Park

Should Bill Be Voted Favorably It Will Mean Employment for Large Number of Men—Will Develop Park Into Wonderful Playground.

SENATOR A. H. WICKS

Senator Arthur H. Wicks this morning introduced a bill in the state legislature at Albany for the expenditure of $10,000,000 for developing and improving the Catskill Mountain Park. The bill also provided that the proposition be submitted to the voters at the general election to be held this year.

If the bond issue is voted upon favorably at the general election it will mean that hundreds of men will be given work in that locality.

The bill provides for the building of new highways; construction of camp sites; laying out of paths; improvement of existing lakes, and the acquisition of such additional lands as may become necessary for the general use of the public.

The Catskill Mountain Park includes the mountain towns of Ulster and Greene counties, and also takes in part of the Shawangunk Mountain range.

FRACTURED HIP IN FALL
ON ICE CROSS WALK
Miss Mary Davitt of 60 Van Deusen street fell on the icy cross walk at Clinton avenue and St. James street, Monday afternoon and fractured her right hip. She was picked up by Dr. Cranston and taken to her home by a passing motorist where Dr. Thomas F. Crowley was called and attended to her. After examination he decided that hospital attention was required and the W. N. Connor private ambulance was called and conveyed her to the Benedictine Hospital, where X-rays were taken to determine the extent of the injury. She remained at the hospital under the care of Dr. Crowley.

THREE CASES IN COURT
BEFORE JUDGE CULLOTON.
Burton Courtwright, a negro, of 51 Moore street, was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail this morning when arraigned before Judge Culloton in police court to answer to a charge of petit larceny in helping himself to an auto owned by May Stamford, Herman G. Wood of Kerkonkson, arrested on a charge growing out of a check transaction, was discharged when the information lodged against him was withdrawn this morning. James Manning, arrested on complaint of John Janakis, had his hearing adjourned to Friday. The arrest rose out of a check transaction.

WARNER PAYS $25 ON SHOT MACHINE CHARGE
Jack Warner of Lucas avenue, at whose place deputies from the sheriff's office seized a quarter slot machine, was arraigned before Justice Roger H. Loughran at Hurley Monday night, charged with possession of a slot machine. He pleaded guilty and was fined $25, which he paid. The $23.45 which the machine contained will go to enrich the poor fund of the town of Hurley. The judge ordered the machine destroyed, which order the deputies proceeded to carry out at once in the presence of the judge.

Attorney Withdraws In Robbery-Assault Case. Put Over a Week

Sister of One of Defendants Asks Postponement of Trial or Three Weeks to Secure New Counsel—District Attorney Murray Says Dismissal of Counsel Appeared to Be a "Stall."

Monday afternoon the district attorney's office came to court ready to proceed with the trial of the Ellenville robbery-assault action growing out of an alleged assault upon Special Town Constable G. Roy Van Arsen, who had been dispatched to seize certain slot machines. It is alleged that after the seizure he was attacked by some men and the machines taken from him after he and a companion, William McNally, had been assaulted.

However, the case did not go to trial and an adjournment was taken until next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock when the three defendants, George Cohen, Peter Cohen and Moe Rand, were instructed to appear in court with counsel and be prepared for trial. The reason the case did not go to trial was that Lefroy Lounsberry had had some difference with his clients and had withdrawn from the case. Mr. Murray stated that the district attorney's office had been notified at 1 o'clock, an hour before court, by Mr. Lounsberry that he was out of the case.

The case was moved for trial Monday afternoon when Shirley Kahn, sister of George Cohen, a lawyer, addressed the court. She stated that Mr. Lounsberry had withdrawn from the case and while she was an attorney, she did not appear as counsel for Cohen. She asked that the case be put over in order to give the defendant an opportunity to secure a new lawyer. It would be impossible for him to secure counsel and prepare for trial at this time. Witnesses, she said, were scattered over the country, some in Buffalo and some in Syracuse, and it would be necessary to consume two or three weeks in securing new counsel and time would be required for the new counsel to go over the case.

She said that if given an opportunity to get new counsel and have time to prepare for trial that there would be no further application for a postponement in the case.

Not Appearing as Attorney.
In appearing she stated that she did not appear as attorney in the case but simply as the sister of George Cohen to see that the defendant was given a fair opportunity to properly make defense to the charges. Her first notice of the matter had been last Thursday and since that time she has learned of the differences between counsel and clients and they appeared now without counsel. There had been an application to change the place of trial made before Judge Foster and she said she did not know and the defendant had not been notified of the decision in that motion and were unprepared for trial. Her impression had been that the case would not come up until next term in view of this motion to change the place of trial which was pending before Judge Foster and which had evidently been decided last week.

In answer to her assertions, District Attorney Cleon E. Murray stated that there had been an application on the part of the defendants to change the place of trial. That matter had come before Judge Foster on December 22. Lefroy Lounsberry at that time appeared for the defendant. There were submitted very voluminous affidavits consisting of some 400 pages. In that application was no request for a stay and an agreement had been had between counsel and the district attorney's office that the case would be moved for trial on two days' notice after the matter before Judge Foster had been decided. That decision was handed down by Judge Foster last Monday and had appeared in the newspapers. It had created some talk about the village and he said that the defendants must have known of the matter as he knew they read the papers. At that time there was a case on trial in county court so the Cohen-Rand case was not moved for trial until this week. More than the two days' notice had been had.

He said Mr. Lounsberry had represented the defendants throughout the matter and he knew that when Mr. Lounsberry appeared for a defendant he looked after his client's interests at all times. However at 1 o'clock, an hour before the case was to be moved, Lounsberry had informed the district attorney's office that he no longer appeared in the case.

Appeared To Be a "Stall"
The last minutes dismissal of counsel in the case he said appeared to be a "stall" to obtain a stay of the trial. Mr. Murray said he had his witnesses in court, an extra panel of jurors was present at considerable expense to the taxpayers. One of his witnesses he said had been brought from Illinois and if a stay of three or four weeks was granted in all probabilities the witness would lose his job. Mr. Murray said he had the witness here and he did not intend to permit him to leave the state. He said he was ready to proceed with the trial.

Shirley Kahn asked the court whether the job of one man was to be compared with the lives of three boys, and Mr. Murray replied that he was not seeking to take the lives of any of the "boys." She then asked the court to give the "boys" a fair trial.

Canfield Proposes Heiselman And Carey Ask For Court Ruling

Drafts Petition To Attorney General To Submit Question of Mayorship of City to Appellate Division of Supreme Court and Asks Heiselman and Carey To Sign and Present Same.

A petition to the attorney general to submit the question as to the mayorship of the city to the Supreme Court or Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, has been proposed by former Mayor Carey and Acting Mayor Heiselman, by former Mayor Palmer Canfield in behalf of the Taxpayers Association and the Workers Co-operative Association.

The petition seeks to have Attorney General Bennett submit the questions to the court upon an agreed statement of facts to avoid prolonged litigation and undue delay in obtaining a judicial determination. This plan, if adopted, would be carried out without any cost to either party or to the city.

January 23, 1934.
Honorable Conrad J. Heiselman, Kingston, N. Y.
Eugene B. Carey, Gentlemen:

I send this communication to you in behalf of the Taxpayers Association of Kingston representing generally the taxpayers of the city, and in behalf of the Workers Co-operative Association representing generally those who are not permanently employed in the city. The Executive Committees of both associations have directed me to take this action.

It is their opinion that the municipal situation as to the mayorship now existing should be clarified and settled judicially without the delay that would attend an action that might result in prolonged litigation. The determination of the questions involved can be obtained without undue and confusing delay and costly action by petitioning the Attorney General of the state to submit a case containing an agreed statement of the facts upon which the questions have arisen to the Supreme Court or to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court.

I enclose such a petition. It is requested that you give serious consideration to it and let me know within the next few days if you are ready and willing to sign it and have the matter submitted as provided therein.

Respectfully,
PALMER CANFIELD.

In the Matter of the Office of Mayor of the City of Kingston, New York:
Hon. John J. Bennett, Attorney General of the State of New York.

The Petition of Conrad J. Heiselman and Eugene B. Carey respectfully shows:

FIRST.—That petitioners are residents of the City of Kingston, N. Y., and are of full age.

SECOND.—That the petitioner Eugene B. Carey was elected Mayor of said City of Kingston at the general election in November, 1931, and duly entered upon the duties of said office on January 1, 1932, and served until January 1, 1934.

THIRD.—That the petitioner Conrad J. Heiselman was re-elected Alderman-at-large of said City of Kingston at the general election on November 7, 1932, and duly entered upon the duties of said office on January 1, 1933, and was serving in said official capacity on January 11, 1934.

Fourth.—That one Harry B. Walker was elected mayor of said City of Kingston at the general election on November 7, 1932, for the term of two years commencing January 1, 1933, and he took the oath of office and entered upon the duties of said office on January 1, 1934, and continued in said official position until January 11, 1934, when he duly resigned from said office.

Fifth.—That from and since said January 11, 1934, the petitioner Conrad J. Heiselman has assumed and exercised the duties of Mayor of said City, except the power to remove appointive officers, as Acting Mayor by virtue of his official position of Alderman-at-large, and is now acting in such capacity. That his claim and authority to act as such is based upon the provisions of Section 29-a of the Charter of the City of Kingston, being Chapter 117 of the Laws of 1896, as amended by Chapter 611, Laws of 1915, and Chapter 215, Laws of 1919, and reading as follows:

"Sec. 29-a. The Alderman-at-large shall be the president and presiding officer of the common council, and shall have the power to name and appoint all of the committees, and shall be a member of said common council with the same duties and powers of an Alderman, provided, however, that he shall not be entitled to vote except in case of a tie. In case the mayor shall be unable to perform the duties of his office in consequence of continued absence or absence from the city, or if there shall be a vacancy in the office of the Alderman-at-large, the Alderman-at-large shall be a voting member, and shall be voted upon by all members, except to remove appointive officers, and shall perform all the duties of the mayor until the mayor shall resume his office, or the vacancy shall be filled according to law."

SIXTH.—That section 19 of said Charter, as amended by Chapter 611, Laws of 1915, reads as follows:

"Sec. 19. The Mayor shall be elected by the voters of the city at the town election for the ensuing two years."

SEVENTH.—That the petitioners are of the opinion that the question as to the mayorship of the city should be settled judicially without the delay that would attend an action that might result in prolonged litigation.

EIGHTH.—That the petitioners are of the opinion that the question as to the mayorship of the city should be settled judicially without the delay that would attend an action that might result in prolonged litigation.

NINTH.—That the petitioners are of the opinion that the question as to the mayorship of the city should be settled judicially without the delay that would attend an action that might result in prolonged litigation.

TENTH.—That the petitioners are of the opinion that the question as to the mayorship of the city should be settled judicially without the delay that would attend an action that might result in prolonged litigation.

ELEVENTH.—That the petitioners are of the opinion that the question as to the mayorship of the city should be settled judicially without the delay that would attend an action that might result in prolonged litigation.

Twelfth.—That the petitioners are of the opinion that the question as to the mayorship of the city should be settled judicially without the delay that would attend an action that might result in prolonged litigation.

Thirteenth.—That the petitioners are of the opinion that the question as to the mayorship of the city should be settled judicially without the delay that would attend an action that might result in prolonged litigation.

FOURTEENTH.—That the petitioners are of the opinion that the question as to the mayorship of the city should be settled judicially without the delay that would attend an action that might result in prolonged litigation.

FIFTEENTH.—That the petitioners are of the opinion that the question as to the mayorship of the city should be settled judicially without the delay that would attend an action that might result in prolonged litigation.

ART SCHOLARSHIP WON BY KINGSTON GIRL

Rosalind Ellison of 10 Maiden Lane, has been awarded a scholarship for a course in advanced fashion sketching at the McDowell School of Costume Design, 71 West 45th street, New York city, by Rosalind McDowell Lynn, director.

The scholarship was given to Miss Ellison because of her exceptional talents and achievements in the fashion field. Miss Lynn stated today. She completed the general course in costume designing last fall, and after several months in fashion work has returned to the McDowell School to specialize in sketching.

While still a student in the designing course Miss Ellison was engaged by the editors of the fashion magazine "Mode" to assist in the presentation of their quarterly fashion shows. Upon graduation from the McDowell School, she was engaged by Gladys Parker, Inc., famous fashioners of debutante modes, to take charge of their showroom, select colors and fabrics for new designs, and for several months was stylist for this company.

Miss Lynn considers Miss Ellison unusually gifted with fashion sense, and predicts a brilliant future for this Kingston girl in the creative field of costume designing.

Farm Bureau Plans Breeders' School

Professor Brownell Will Explain How to Avoid Gamble in Mating Cattle—Meeting to be Held at New Paltz on February 1 and 2—Two Sessions Daily.

How to remove the gamble from the breeding of dairy cattle and make the producing of better quality cows a more certain science will be demonstrated at the Ulster county dairy breeding school scheduled for February 1 and 2 at the Orange Hill, New Paltz, Prof. S. J. Brownell, of the New York State College of Agriculture, will conduct the school, and a large attendance is expected. Over 4,000 dairymen in New York state listened to this popular series of meetings last year.

Dairymen also have the opportunity to study the germ which transmits producing ability and to figure pedigree characters that point to higher quality as the question of how to select a better herd also has always been a problem to dairymen, and will be fully explained. Questions which puzzle dairymen are: Why do some world-record cows never have great sons? Why do some produce more milk than others? Why do some give black and white calves? The school has two morning and two afternoon sessions, starting at 10 o'clock in the morning and closing promptly at 3 o'clock.

FLY YIELDS MORE SECRETS ABOUT MAN

Knowledge May Enable Humanity to Better Race.

Los Angeles—The lowly vinegar fly is continuing to yield up more of the secrets of heredity of all forms of life which won the Nobel prize in medicine for Dr. Thomas Hunt Morgan of the California Institute of Technology.

Further reports of his studies are to be made available soon by Doctor Morgan, who has substantiated many facts about the acquirement of physical characteristics by man from his studies of the vinegar fly. How he is able to do so, he explained recently:

"The physical characteristics of man are inherited in exactly the same way as are those of all other animals. "There are probably as many kinds of defective types in man as there are defective races of the vinegar fly, drosophila.

"The vinegar fly furnishes the geneticist, or student of heredity, excellent material for the study of the fundamental principles of heredity, because the offspring can be obtained every few days, and because from a single pair 500 to 1,000 young can be obtained.

"In man on the contrary, so few offspring are born to a pair that they do not give a good sample of all the possibilities contained in the reproductive cells of the parents.

"In the William G. Kerckhoff laboratories, studies of heredity, both of animals and of plants, are being actively pursued. There are some 500 races of pedigreed flies that furnish the material, on the animal side, for genetic work.

"For the genetic study of man the work of medical men is of the greatest importance, because to the doctor come not only the lame, the halt and the blind, but also those who suffer the minor evils of our common inheritance."

Paris Seeking to Save Historic Royal Bridge

Paris—Engineer, spare that bridge! —is the cry that is being sent up by loyal and sentimental Parisians as the pick and ax threatens to demolish the Pont Royal, built by Louis XIV and cherished by many.

This is the bridge which connects the right and left banks of the Seine at the western end of the Louvre, and the commission du vieux Paris is asking the powers that be to register the bridge as an historic monument, thus saving it from destruction.

The story goes that one day Louis XIV was passing along the quay on the Louvre side when he chanced to see a ferryboat, a "bac" it was called, capsize and dump all its occupants into the water. "Good gracious!" he said to his architect, "I can't have my subjects drowned like dogs! Build me a bridge on this spot at once!"

And that's how the Pont Royal happened. And that's how the Rue du Bac got its name—the street that continues the Pont Royal on the Quai d'Orsay side of the river.

The plaint that imperils the ancient bridge is that it takes up too much room.

Electric Pen and Pencil Intrigues Fair Guests

Leipzig—One can write in darkness with the aid of the new electrically illuminated pencil. The pen, or pencil, has an illuminated point, which throws a normal light on the paper without shadows so matter how fast it moves over the paper.

A tiny lamp is mounted behind the point or pen, which receives its current from an ordinary type of pocket or torch cell. The light is switched off or on by turning the cap to the right or left. The same turn also serves to advance the lead at the point. The new contrivance for writing in the dark, which has been exhibited at the Leipzig fair, is carried in the pocket easily.

Upright Log in Crater Gives Geologists Clue

Crater Lake, Ore.—Discovery of an upright carbonized log buried inside the inner rim of Crater lake is said to prove volcanic action in geologic history of this region.

The discovery was made by Ranger-Naturalist Albert Long. The section uncovered is 32 inches long, 1 3/4 in diameter at top and 1 1/2 at base. Its upright position indicates the tree was alive when covered by a volcanic eruption.

Atlantic Waves May Create New Island

Provincetown, Mass.—Encroaching waters of the restless Atlantic may create a new island off the Massachusetts coast during the next ten years.

Last spring a three-day storm ate away several feet of embankment and inundated the Pamet river coast guard station, and now 13 miles of Cape Cod between Truro and Provincetown is in danger of being sliced from the rest of the cape.

The ocean has only to advance a stone's throw at the point in question to connect with the town of Pamet river, a small stream which crosses the cape and joins Cape Cod Bay.

Some parts of the cape shore have been cut into 200 to 300 feet by flood tides.

Cooperation Will Be Speaker's Subject

E. URNER GOODMAN
National Director of Program,
Boy Scouts of America.

One of the speakers at the meeting to be held at the Governor Clinton Hotel Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, to discuss a plan for closer cooperation between the men of the Catholic Church and the Boy Scouts of America will be E. Urner Goodman, director of the program division of the National Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Goodman entered Scouting as Scoutmaster of Troop 1, Philadelphia, in 1911, one year after the establishment of Scouting in the United States, and a year later became Scoutmaster of the Troop, continuing in a volunteer capacity until 1915, in which year he became director of Treasure Island, the Philadelphia Boy Scout camp. In addition to this activity, carried on until 1919, Mr. Goodman was appointed chief field executive in Philadelphia in 1915. Two years later he was elected as Scout Executive of Philadelphia, continuing without interruption in this post, though serving a time as an officer of infantry during the World War.

He was chosen to become Executive of the Chicago, Ill., Scout Council in 1927 and continued there for four years. He became a member of the National staff as Director of the Program Division in May, 1931.

Mr. Goodman was born in Philadelphia in 1891, attended the Philadelphia School of Pedagogy, the University of Pennsylvania and Temple University. In 1911 he made the first survey of boy life in Philadelphia.

Fifth Ward Democratic Club.
All members of the Fifth Ward Democratic Club are requested to attend the regular club meeting at St. Mary's Hall, 200 North street, at 8 o'clock this evening.

Ocean Along Panamanian Shore Seen to Natives

The sea along the Panamanian shore produces pearls, sea urchins and coral, while inland many natives are employed in sugar refineries, soap, tanning, candle, shoe and hat factories, and in gathering tortoise shells for export.

Panama City, capital of the republic, situated on the slopes overlooking the Pacific Ocean, is Panama's largest city. Its 14,000 inhabitants constitute about one-sixth of the population of the republic.

Colon, second largest city, is situated on the Atlantic side of the isthmus. It is one of Panama's most striking examples of modern city development. Not many decades ago its site was a swampy, fever-infested island, but it is now one of the most modern Panamanian cities with about 30,000 inhabitants. Across the street from Colon is Cristobal in the Canal Zone.

Panama's population centers have become racial melting pots. On the streets of the capital the American traveler may be jostled by men from India, China, Japan, Malaysia, the East and West Indies, the South Sea Islands, and nearly all the countries of Europe and South America. Census reports indicate that there are some 3,000 Orientals, 22,000 whites, 96,000 negroes, 33,500 Indians, and 263,000 Mestizos, in the republic.

"Ear of Dionysius"
In the western section of the city of Syracuse, on the southeastern coast of the island of Sicily, there is an ancient quarry, the "Latomia del Paradiso." The city was built of the material from the latomia in that locality. These quarries were used as burial places, and sometimes as prisons for enemies who were compelled to work in them. "Latomia del Paradiso" contains the "Ear of Dionysius," so-called in the sixteenth century, a grotto in the form of a letter S, 210 feet deep, 74 feet in height and 15 to 35 feet in width, narrowing toward the summit (Ear), and having remarkable acoustic peculiarities. The slightest sound in the grotto may be heard by persons at the upper end (Ear). Dionysius, the Elder, built prisons with such acoustic properties in order to be able to detect even a whisper therein. This grotto is supposed to be one of them.

Heat of Stars
Omikron Ceti, in the constellation of the whale, is one of the variable stars and the astronomer at Mt. Wilson observatory state that the heat of this star varies between 2,900 and 4,100 degrees Fahrenheit and the brightness increases or decreases 225 times during the fluctuation. Omikron Ceti is one of the cooler stars. An example of a really hot star is Zeta Orionis, a faint star, with a temperature of about 41,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

Plan Women's Choral Society at Y. W.

Plans have been completed for a women's choral society to be held at the Y. W. C. A. on Tuesday evenings, beginning January 30, from 7:30 to 9 o'clock, with Harry Dodge as director.

Miss Loskamp's resignation as director of the Schubert Choral Club, which has been a very active organization during the past 10 years, necessitated a new plan. The Y. W. C. A. interviewed various ladies in their wish to cooperate with the officers of the Schubert Choral Club in building up a larger women's choral group.

At a preliminary meeting held at Friday evening by the sponsoring committee, the general plans were made. The first rehearsal will be on Tuesday evening, January 30, at 7:30 o'clock, under the direction of Mr. Dodge, with Miss Edna Merz acting as accompanist.

The sponsoring committee includes the following: Mrs. William A. Miller, Mrs. Arthur Wicks, Mrs. Dan Matthews, Mrs. Joseph M. Fowler, Mrs. Stanley M. Winne, Mrs. Howard Lewis, Mrs. Charles Swiliger, Mrs. William Hooker, Mrs. Conrad Heidelein, Mrs. George A. Rice, Miss Ruth Neal, Miss Carl Rice, Mrs. Gladys H. Tinsie, Mrs. Frieda Niebergall, Miss Ruth M. Mow Eva Rand, Miss Laura Wiley, Miss Eva Clinton, Miss Jean Stey.

Two Chimney Fires

Plattekill, Jan. 23.—Wednesday the Plattekill fire department was called to the Campbell farm, east of Plattekill, when a chimney fire became dangerous, but was extinguished before serious damage was done.

Wednesday night, during the severe wind storm, another alarm was sent from the John Densch place on the Forest road, west of Plattekill.

There another chimney fire was raging. The severe weather hindered the firemen to some extent, but the fire was put out. The sparks on the ice-coated roof, which was in the firemen's favor. However, the firemen did not prevent the fire from saving the house, which was in great danger of being destroyed.

Deputation Team At Phoenicia

Sunday evening the local Youth Council Deputation Team was the guest of the Epworth League of the Phoenicia M. E. Church, and conducted a service in that church. The congregation of the Phoenicia Baptist Church also joined for the service.

The orchestra, under the direction of Sherwood Lasher, and consisting of Allan Boerker, John Young, violins; Donald Whiston, cello, and Miss Marion Coutant, organist, opened the service with "Angel's Serenade." This was followed with a call to worship sung by the vocal quartet, Miss Frieda Niebergall, soprano; Miss Hermine Lawatsch, alto; Harold Macholdt, bass, and John Young, tenor. Wallace Buley led the invocation. The quartet sang "Follow the Glean." Mrs. Sherwood Lasher read, following which 2 Timothy 2:1-15 was read by Donald Boyce.

The addresses of the evening were given by Henry Elghmer and Henry S. Van Der Zee. Miss Niebergall sang "Work On" with the quartet assisting. Donald Clark sang "Just For Today." Wilson Tinney led in prayer.

At the conclusion of the service, the deputation team was entertained by the young people of the church and were served refreshments.

Next Sunday the Youth Council Deputation Team will be the guests of the Congregational Church of Ponckhockie, of which the Rev. Harold Coleman is the pastor.

REGULAR MEETING OF STONE RIDGE GRANGE

Stone Ridge, Jan. 23.—The regular meeting of Stone Ridge Grange No. 931 was held Monday evening, January 15, with all officers present. The new Grange year promises to be a banner year for Grange activities.

The report of the Service and Hospitality committee was read by Sister Millie Beatty, chairman of the 1933 committee. Considerable work was accomplished by the committee, consisting of Sister Millie Beatty, chairman, Sister Emma Beatty and Sister Styles. They were given a rising vote of thanks for their services.

Announcement was made of the state lecturers' conference at Lake Placid in February.

After the business session refreshments were served by the committee with Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Salher, host and hostess. A social hour was spent playing cards and dominoes.

The refreshment committee for next Grange meeting Monday evening, February 5, consists of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Garrison, host and hostess, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Elton Parry, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Green and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gillespie.

The Grange dance Friday evening, January 19, was a decided success. The next dance, Friday evening, February 2, will be managed by L. O. Salher and Roy Webber. Music will be furnished by Zucca's five-piece orchestra.

EMMA WYGANT 4-H CLUB HELD MEETING

The regular meeting of the Senior Emma Wygant 4-H Club was held at the home of Mrs. Palen January 18.

The members have decided to put on a play. After the business meeting Mrs. Darling gave a talk on the value of fruit in the daily diet. Mrs. Palen demonstrated different ways of preparing different fruits. Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Palen, which were enjoyed by all the girls. Later games were played.

Card Party

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Rosendale Firemen will hold a card party at the Firemen's Hall Thursday, February 1. These parties are looked forward to with a great deal of pleasure. Refreshments will be served. Games start promptly at 8:30.

Fossilized American

Not excluding the vast home deposits of giant prehistoric animals in Argentina, Bolivia and Mongolia, the United States contains today more fossilized remains of dinosaurs than any other country in the world.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

Afternoon Frock.

8088. Tunics are with us again, and their helpful length of line, and chic Breteles too add their little style bit in, and broaden the shoulder line over a plain fitted sleeve. The waist is made to blouse slightly above the narrow belt—and the skirt has straight line fullness.

As pictured lame and velvet are combined. Satin and woolen or velvet and woolen, or velvet and satin, will also combine well in this style. Equally smart is the entire dress of faille or rough crepe with a touch of contrast in the tie alone.

Designed in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 38 requires 2 1/2 yards of 39 inch material for waist and tunic, and 2 1/4 yards for the skirt. The tie of wide ribbon requires 1/2 yard.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Book of Fashions, Fall and Winter. Send 15c in silver or stamps for our FALL and WINTER BOOK OF FASHIONS containing designs of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Patterns, also hints to the Home Dressmaker.

ROSENDALE

Rosendale, Jan. 23.—There will be a cottage prayer meeting held at the home of Mrs. John Oilly this evening at 8 o'clock.

Miss Zelma Canfield of New York city spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Canfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kelly spent the week-end with relatives in Athens, N. Y.

Friends of Joseph McKeener, who is in the hospital suffering from injuries received in a recent accident, will be glad to hear he is much improved and is expected to return to his home in a few days. Harry Snyder, who was in the same accident, has recovered.

At a recent meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Active Home No. 1, Rosendale, the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. Daniel Delaney; vice president, Mrs. Henry Myers; financial secretary, Mrs. Golden Lewis; recording secretary, Mrs. Fred Krom; treasurer, Mrs. Silas Auchmoody. The following ladies appointed as trustees: Mrs. E. Hiker, Mrs. M. Connell and Mrs. Mowrer. The auditing committee, Mrs. S. Rooks, Mrs. Winters and Mrs. R. Hasbrouck. The entertainment committee, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Lippert, Mrs. Mowrer and Mrs. Winters.

Young Woman Climbs Mt. Victoria

LOOKING down on Lake O'Hara, in Alberta, Canada, from the topmost pinnacle of Mt. Victoria (11,305 feet) are Miss Georgia Engelhard, noted young New York alpinist and her Swiss guide, Ernest Feuz. The photograph was made on the occasion of Miss Engelhard's second visit to this region of lofty heights, beautiful vistas, and shimmering mountain tarns. On her first visit she surmounted 36 of the high peaks of the district, and this time she added 18 new ones to her total.

By R. H. WILKINSON

ALVIN WINTHROP is a fatalistic sort of person. This is strange, too, when you consider his wealthy uncle died not long ago and bequeathed to the young man the sum of two million dollars, which amount has kept Alvin more or less on the jump ever since in an endeavor to spend more than his investments bring in.

On the other hand, when you consider that, at the age of twenty-one, Alvin had visited every country in the world, attended every known function everywhere of any national or world-wide interest, dabbled in every sort of business, met all kinds of people and achieved more or less fame as an expert in a variety of sports—when you bear these things in mind you do not wonder that the youngster is somewhat bored with life and is apt to devote some of his idle moments, of which there are now countless numbers, to brooding.

For Alvin is not the type of fatalist who predicts disaster for the universe at large; his prophecies concern only his own destiny.

He is the sort of person, who, upon taking leave of your company after a brief visit, augments his conventional farewell with, "Well, see you tomorrow—if I'm not run over by a truck in the meantime."

In fact, Alvin has injected this phrase into his farewells so often that friends and acquaintances have bestowed upon him, in a spirit of fun, the moniker, "Run over by a Truck Alvin."

Indeed, Alvin has brooded over the matter, considered its possibilities to such an extent that he has actually come to believe his death is destined to be brought about by a careless truck driver.

With him the thing is no laughing matter.

He has carefully weighed and figured the chances.

He has added up the number of times he crosses busy streets during the course of one day, multiplied this figure by seven, averaged the number of trucks that cross his path in an equal number of days and discovered that during the week he has 284 excellent opportunities of being annihilated by a truck.

The thing has become an obsession; he has remarked upon it so many times that we who are closely associated with the youth have come to the conclusion that the boy will feel disappointed unless a truck does actually flatten him out on some well-paved highway.

Recently a number of us called on Alvin and, after a period of urging, prevailed upon him to take a world cruise.

We waived his argument that he had been on world cruises before.

What he needed, we told him, was a change of atmosphere, climate and associates, something to drive this silly getting-killed-by-a-truck notion from his head.

The thing was warping his brain. He'd better nip it in the bud before a funny wagon backed up to his front door some day and a man in uniform crooked his finger in his direction.

Much to our relief Alvin consented to make the attempt.

He agreed with us that he was spending too much time of late thinking about himself.

It was with the sense of a duty well performed that we waved Alvin's liner away from the dock, and returned to our various occupations.

He was a good boy, likable and generous to a fault, and we hated to see a little thing like being knocked for a row of gooseberry bushes by a 10-ton truck upset his mentality.

A month after Alvin set sail, Victor Perry returned to Boston from a trip abroad.

We were talking to Vic one night at the club, when he mentioned having met Alvin in France.

Of course, we were delighted to have first-hand news of our patient.

"How is he?" I asked Vic. "He didn't mention anything about trucks, did he?"

"Trucks?"

"Yes. You see, Alvin has developed an insane idea that sooner or later a truck is going to crush him into nothingness. We advised him to take a trip around the world and drive the thing from his mind."

"Well, you succeeded. No, Alvin didn't say a word about trucks. But he did mention steamships."

"Steamships?"

"Yes. When we parted 10 days ago he said, 'Well, I'll see you in America. Unless this steamship I'm on decides to investigate the bottom of the ocean while I'm on it. Which is probably will.' It didn't bother me much at the time, because on several previous occasions during our two-day visit, he had hinted at a similar fate for himself."

Vic's story was a bit disturbing, yet at the same time it was encouraging. Apparently Alvin had succeeded in ridding his mind of the picture of a fleet of trucks rushing at him from all sides.

And by the same token it was reasonable to believe he would dispose of the steamship hallucination with a like effort.

The next we heard of Alvin he was flying about India in an airplane, and from all we could gather from vague references in a letter received from a mutual friend, Alvin had expressed fear at regular intervals, much to the disgust of the pilot, that the plane would crash on the desert, smash helplessly into the depths of some inland lake at any moment while the youth was a passenger.

Yet, in spite of everything, we clung to the remote hope that Alvin might eventually be cured.

In fact, it wasn't until we received a letter from the boy himself, in which he utilized three pages fretting over the possibility that a submarine on which he had been invited as a passenger during an exhibition voyage on the day following, would fail to come to the surface, that we admitted failure of our plan.

Strange as it may seem, Alvin didn't come home following the completion of his round the world cruise.

Apparently he had discovered things of more interest in some foreign country.

It was only natural, therefore, that during the years that followed he came less and less to occupy our minds.

One or another of us heard from him at long intervals.

Occasionally we chanced upon an acquaintance who had met him in some foreign port.

And, piecing together fragmentary bits of information, we concluded that he had established himself in England and planned no more to frequent his native land.

Our hopes that he might have overcome his pet obsession were shattered whenever news of Alvin was available.

Folks laughed when his name was mentioned, and usually remarked somewhat in this fashion:

"Oh, he's the young man who's positive that the train on which he's riding will run off a bridge." Or: "You mean the chap who dislikes automobiles because if he rides in one there's sure to be a smash-up."

And so it went.

Alvin had become a chronic fatalist. And, as is usually the fate of all fatalistic people, nothing ever happened to him.

He rode in airplanes, on boats, trains, submarines; he traveled in hostile countries, hunted wild game in Australia and visited the jungles of Africa. And survived them all without a scratch.

The years rolled by and letters from Alvin ceased altogether.

Seldom now did we chance upon people who had met him while traveling abroad.

Only at rare intervals was his name mentioned at the club.

He no longer held a place in our existences.

He became a dim and distant memory, forgotten, though still somewhat of a legend.

Recently I read of Alvin's death. The news was somewhat of a shock.

It was actually several seconds after his name had started back at me on an inner page of the London Times that the familiar chord was stirred to life, and I remembered; recalled the whole story, and saw, in my mind's eye, a picture of Alvin with that worried expression on his face and the fearful look in his eyes.

I read again the item, and, in spite of the tragedy of it, a smile came to my lips, and then I laughed. "American Millionaire," the article read, "Killed in Accident. Alvin Winthrop, late of Boston, Mass., U. S. A., a resident of Shropshire during recent years, globe traveler, adventurer, and big-game hunter was yesterday run down and instantly killed in Piccadilly by a cyclist. Mr. Winthrop was apparently trying to avoid being hit by a truck, ignoring the bicycle coming from the opposite direction. The victim struck his head against the curb in his fall, to which fact is attributed his death."

California Earthquakes

Lengthen Building Lots

Even as earthquake does some good, says Popular Mechanics Magazine, a man living in the area affected by the California earthquake measured his building lot eastward and found to his pleasant surprise that it was 1 1/2 feet longer than before it was shaken. One principal street in Los Angeles had its width between curbs widened six to eight inches, while 11-inch cracks were opened in side streets. These geological changes occurred in a sandy spit about a mile and a half long and from 400 to 500 feet wide.

It is estimated that the spit was widened four feet by the tumbler in a number of places, for four extra feet of pipe were needed to repair the water system in some cross streets. In spite of the "stretching" little damage was done to houses in this area.

"I'LL BE GETTIN' ALONG"

By ANNE CAMPBELL

HE WAS stony and grizzled and old. And he stood at the side of the road. In his arms were his clothes, no great load. But all that his frail arms could hold.

He had tried all in vain for a ride. And he stood in the afternoon sun. And I, homeward bound, my work done. Remained for a bit by his side.

At last, as he hummed a little song. He turned down the street toward the light. Of the sun sliding down from its height. And he said: "I'll be gettin' along!"

"I'll be gettin' along!" and his tone Had a ringing and resolute sound. And his old feet struck hard on the ground. As they strode toward the sunset alone.

And I, when I heard him, grew strong! In spite of the difficult years. Because of the pain and the tears. I, too, "will be gettin' along!"

New Governments For Old

Europe's "Dictator" March On In Battle With Past

HITLER

MUSSOLINI

By CHARES STEPHENSON SMITH
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Building afresh on the crumbling walls of tradition and the accepted order of things, three of the world's leading countries find themselves virtually under the control of one man—and one party. The theory and practice of these governments are outlined in the following resumes:

Germany

Adolf Hitler, youngest of Europe's trio of dictators, is building a government to operate from the top downward.

The little Austrian-born autocrat started his Nazi (national socialist) party in Munich in 1920—a brown-shirted military organization, he modeled after Mussolini's "black shirts." He was always anti-Semitic and mildly socialist, but made little progress until the Nazi storm troops sprang up.

More than 1,000,000 of these unemployed men under 30 years of age swarmed to Hitler on his cry, "Back to the Germany of Bismarck." With them came the sons of the former kaiser, and Hitler forced the republic to accept him as its chancellor.

For tactical reasons, the Nazis retained the constitutional form of a republic and a president, but by degrees have been absorbing governmental functions. Central power is vested in a coalition cabinet. Five party officials named by Hitler last June make up a "super-cabinet" without portfolio.

State governments are dominated largely by Nazi officials.

The Nazi storm troops are a highly organized military group with branches in every German town.

Special courts have been created for Nazis and they are given preferred treatment in many ways. Labor has been regimented in military fashion. Christian churches are being coordinated under Nazi leadership, opposition newspapers and political parties have been suppressed. A vigorous campaign executed against Jews and communists and demand made for restoration of German territory taken by the former allied powers.

U. S. S. R.

Czar Nicholas was ousted and bolshevik Russia had set the pattern of one-party governments long before Joseph Stalin became the strong man of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Stalin rose to dictatorial heights as secretary-general of the political bureau of the central executive committee of the Russian communist party. He has no office in the Soviet government but it is his bureau which makes decisions on governmental policy.

Theoretically, the supreme authority in the Soviet Union is the All-Union Congress of Soviets. This congress composed of about 2,000 delegates, meets for only a few days every two years and during the intervals the All-Union central executive committee directs the affairs of the nation.

The committee selects the people's commissars, such as Foreign Commissar Litvinoff who negotiated with President Roosevelt, directs the issuance of legal codes and has a combination of legislative and administrative authority. The supreme court of the union is attached to this committee.

The communist party is the only legal political organization in Russia. Stalin's bureau decides all governmental policies for the 6,000,000 members of the communist party which dominates Russia's 150,000,000 inhabitants.

Lenin wished to give the workers absolute communism and control of world revolution. Stalin has given them a "state capitalism," considering the compromise as the proper course for the reconstruction of Russia along proletarian lines.

Italy

In the march toward great, one-party governments, Italy has the unique distinction of creating a new order without overthrowing the titular head of the old.

King Victor Emmanuel III still is the ruler of the Italian nation and the House of Savoy its royal family even if its work-a-day routine he completely bossed by the socialist editor of Milan who became Il Duce—"the chief."

Benito Mussolini marched his black shirts into Rome with melodramatic fervor 12 years ago, took over the government and with 1,500,000 fascist followers began dictating the movements of forty-two million countrymen.

The fascist grand council most of whose members are appointed by Mussolini, is officially defined as the "supreme organ coordinating all the activities of the regime." This council designates members of the chamber of deputies, Italy's legislative body, and must be consulted on all constitutional questions.

The fascist party is directed by a general secretary, Achille Starace, who was named by Mussolini. Its members regard themselves as a civil militia at the service of the state. They have regimented business and labor and constantly dangle before modern Italy the glories of ancient Rome by pageants and parades without end.

All non-fascist newspapers have been suppressed and all opposition parties eliminated. The fascist foreign policy is nationalistic, believes in territorial expansion and is skeptical of the League of Nations. Its domestic policy refers all labor disputes to special courts and forbids strikes and lockouts.

FASHIONS by ELEANOR GUNN

Raising the Eyebrows at Backsliding Hats

The two models illustrated are from the collection of Elaine Mary. The one at left is a moderate off-one-eyebrow type, either in a stitched fabric or Panama de sole. The cuff brim is manipulated, wider on one side than the other, and with a point at side front.

The turban is of a most vogue in black, with a suggestion of the bow in crown and brim treatment. Gold and black silk cord and pompoms trim it.

Jewelry Goes on the Gold Standard

Paris—An important jeweler has brought out dress clips which combine gold with platinum or white gold; and these are to be found also at other jewelers where yellow and coppery gold are also combined. Link bracelets combining the two metals are another development.

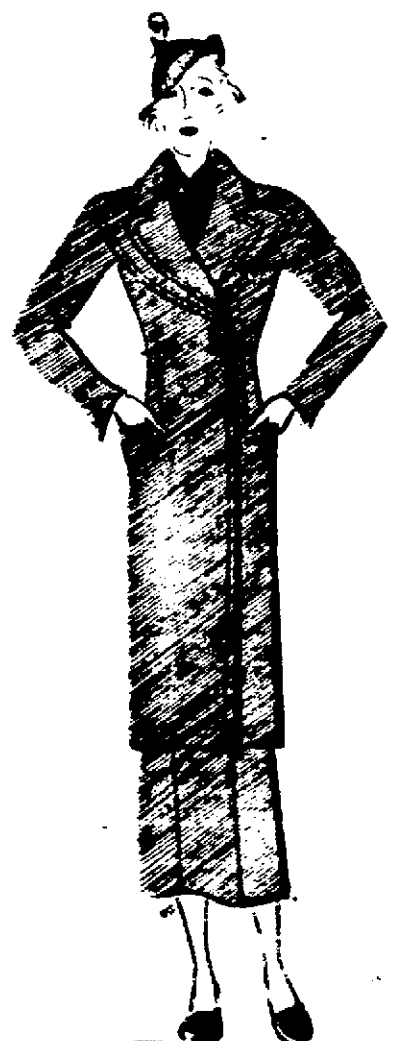

Play Your Long and Strong Suit

New York—The first shot and one that will be echoed around the world is about to be fired from the salons of the Paris dressmaking houses. The "openings" are the great excitement of the fashion world, and for the next ten days and longer, cables will be kept sizzling with red hot tips from eyewitnesses in Paris. After which, in the course of time and human events, imports will be coming over and we on this side of the Atlantic, will have our big moment of inspection. Until all this is over one person's guess is almost as good as another's as to what will be worn, and nobody can really tell what will be launched.

This being the case it's just as well to cling, and cling hard, to the suit which we know will be good. Springtime is suit-time always. True, there were long years when tailors were forgotten by women, years in which women who had to wear Viennese or nothing. But the suit naturally finally asserted itself, so here it is, not only in severely tailored types, but in the softer dressmaker versions as well. Silk suits have a way of being made with short coats or jackets, many of them straight and opening over a printed or at least a lighter bodice section or blouse. Tailored suits continue to be patterned after men's clothes and England is getting to be a happy hunting ground for this type.

One of the fabric headlines is tweed. It retains its position because of the new colorings introduced, colorings that breathe of springtime and are very often in pastels, called "daisy" pastels by the way, which seems a most unkind and unattractive way to designate really lovely colors among which are pinkish blues and some violets. There are those who hold firmly to gray and crepe for spring while there are some others who think that gray has tanked excepting in combination with a dash of color.

A BUSINESS-LIKE SUIT

Made in a gray two-toned cashmere, the suit above depicts Mainbocker's double-breasted and adheres to the fitted silhouette. The unfettered blouse is in navy blue ribbed cotton.

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

By JEAN NEWTON

THE HAZARD OF NAGGING

A CAMDEN judge refused a man a divorce on the ground of a nagging wife. For, said the judge, nagging is not cruelty, but one of the hazards of marriage. And "a man must take his chances when he marries!"

And that, it seems to me, has done no harm at all, and may do some good.

For with so many states exalting nagging to a major vice by calling it "cruelty," and therefore good reason for divorce, men have given innocent thought to that hazard in marriage. Since you were protected by law from a nagging wife, and since a wife knew you could divorce her for that type of cruelty, why there was no need to give as much thought to the lasting qualities of a girl's disposition, as, say, of her face or figure.

If a pretty girl became plain, or a slim girl became fat, there was no recourse for a man but to suffer and bemoan his bad luck. No divorces for a woman's failing to live up to her husband's expectations in the matter of good looks. Perhaps that is the reason men have emphasized to such a degree that part of a girl's qualifications, to the complete neglect of any thought on her disposition.

Now that a judge has set a precedent in calling nagging just one of the hazards of married life, perhaps men will give as much thought to a girl's good nature and sense of humor as to the particular tilt of her nose, no less attention to the lasting qualities of her mind than to the color of her hair.

Verily it may do good thus to publicize the hazard of a nagging wife!

Eases Ugly Fat Off Hips, Thighs Waist and Ankles

Leaves Flesh Firm—No Wrinkles—Wonderfully Improves Your Health

Here's a woman writing from the nation's Capitol—let's read what Mrs. Nellie Smith of Washington, D. C., says: "I weighed 175 when I started taking your wonderful Kruschen Salts. The first week I lost 5 lbs. and the 2nd week I lost 12 lbs. It is wonderful."

A half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water first thing every morning enables you to safely and comfortably get rid of excess fat and become wonderfully slimmer all while it protects your health, looks and energy.

Physicians describe it—millions of folks all over the world take this little daily dose—actually a health treatment—to keep physically fine and fit—energetic—reasons for work and play. Excess fat and petty ailments, rheumatism, constipation, indigestion, gas, acidity and distaste are bound to go and become slenderness and glorious health come to stay.

A jar lasts 4 weeks—the cost is trifling at any first class drugstore—Adv.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—Master Jimmy Butler, 17, white-haired, and very straight in his suit, looked himself to another character actor and revealed some of the inner secrets of a new kind of actor's life.

"Sure, I like being an actor," he said between sips of his drink. "It's more fun than work. In this last picture all I really had to do was stand off-stage and throw sandbags at the other fellows."

"This last picture" is "No Greater Glory," adapted from Ferenc Molnár's "The Street Boys" and directed by "Paul Street Boys" with an "all-star cast" headed by Jimmy Butler, who plays the role of Boka, the boys' gang leader.

When He Gets Bigger—

"Yeah," continued Jimmy, "I go to school at Hamilton, but it's not a silly school even if it does have a '16' in its name. We got the award in football. No, I wasn't on the team, 'cause dad wouldn't let me and I was too light."

"But I'm going to be a western star when I get bigger—I mean, an athletic star. I like to ride and shoot—I've got two .22 caliber rifles and I'm trying to get a .32 pistol. Right now the chances are fifty-fifty, 'cause dad says I can have it and mother says I can't—so I guess I won't."

"I've got a burro, too, but I'm going to get a pinto instead and that'll be more fun. And you ought to see the car Irving Pichel's son and I built from an old model-T. It was fine when we finished, only everything worked backwards."

"Regular Boy" Roles

Master Jimmy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill W. Butler, formerly of Akron, O., but now of Filadelfia, came into pictures because Louise Dresser gave him a role in "A Plain Man and His Wife" at the Pasadena community playhouse.

His only previous stage experience had been in school theatricals, but John M. Stahl, producing "Only Yesterday," picked him over a hundred other boys for the role of Margaret Sullivan's military school son in that film. He filled the bill as a clean-cut "regular boy" whose acting would be natural.

He has lived an active outdoor life, with a period at military school accounting for the erect bearing that helped to pave his way to a film career.

And the career already has brought its weight fast," he says, which may account for the slightly disapproving glance of his mother as he reached for another piece of cake. "When I was with Miss Dresser in the play I had to eat twice each performance—and one of the things was apple pie. And shucks, I hate pie!"

Union Hose Auxiliary Host to Men Folks

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Union Hose Company No. 4, were hosts Monday evening to a large gathering at the engine house on East Union street, Ponchockie. The occasion was their annual banquet, which was attended by the members of the Auxiliary and their men folks as well as members of the hose company.

A fine turkey supper was served after which the president of the Auxiliary, Mrs. Julia Kain, welcomed those present and thanked the official for being in attendance. Short talks were also given by Fire Commissioner Edward F. Moran, Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy, Deputy Chief Fred Leverich, Foreman William J. Keating and J. F. Sullivan. During the repast singing of old-time songs was enjoyed by all.

Following the serving of the supper cards were played and dancing indulged in to the strains of the old-time music of the Catskill Mountaineers.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Miller of Port Ewen called at the Ellsworth home on Sunday.

River Nile's Outlets

The Blue and the White Nile join at Khartoum, in the Sudan, thence the White Nile flows north until a little beyond Cairo, where the stream splits into two branches, the Rosetta and the Damietta, forming the Delta. In ancient days there were seven outlets of the Nile into the sea, but five seem to have dried up.

Tips on CONTRACT

RIDDING OVER MEMORABLES.

By TOM O'NEIL.

If an opening bid is doubled, it is immediately and irrevocably the partner of the opener, no matter what the strength. The weaker the hand of the partner of the opening bidder, the greater the obligation to pass.

In contract is the position of the partner of the doubler in case there has been a redouble. As most players handle the situation, the weaker the hand, the greater the necessity of a bid by the partner of the doubler. A pass over the redouble shows strength.

GRAPHIC GOLF

AVOID FORCING STRAIGHT LEFT ARM

SO MUCH has been written about the straight left arm that the average golfer feels himself to adopt it. There is no doubt that it has numerous advantages for one who can adapt himself to its specifications, but to the others, and they are legion, it proves a disadvantage. Numerous successful golfers such as Bobby Jones and Densmore Shute use a straight left with distinct benefit, but in their cases it is more or less natural. Jones has used it since his early golfing days; his physique and elastic muscles have allied themselves to this fundamental easily. Many of the golfing gentry, however, only use it by adoption. In some cases they consciously force the left arm to keep straight. Doing this tends their whole stroke; they are unable to swing freely and their control suffers. For such players it would perhaps be a better idea to allow a slight bend and thus gain a measure of that relaxation that is so essential to a successful golf stroke.

Harry Vardon enjoyed considerable success without using a straight left, and there are many among the present-day golfers, including Harry Cooper (senior), who have found it more advantageous to discard the straight left, which did not suit their game, in favor of a freer swing.

The Words of Wisdom
"We listen to words of wisdom," said H. B. the sage of Chateaux, "but do not especially enjoy them unless they do not happen to be in agreement with our own particular business interests."

Table-Tennis Tourney Starts Wednesday At Sporting Goods Store

Table-tennis tourney will begin play at the Sporting Goods Store Wednesday night. The tourney is being held at the store, which is located at 100 N. Main St. The tourney is being held at the store, which is located at 100 N. Main St. The tourney is being held at the store, which is located at 100 N. Main St.

There are eight seeded players in the tourney, rated as follows: Fuller, VanDeusen, Lacy, S. Hancock, Friedman, Davis, Broadhead and Herzog.

Matches scheduled for tomorrow include first and second round contests. Players opposing each other are: Gloman versus Paul John, N. Fowler versus Svirsky, R. Hancock versus Tompkins, Fuller versus Wonderly, Flemming versus S. Hancock, Ladraine versus B. Davis, and Hopper versus VanDeusen. All of these matches are expected to be played off tomorrow. The scheduled time for each match is posted in the Sweeney-Schonger store.

Ross Picked to Beat Petrolle, Odds 7-5

New York, Jan. 23 (AP).—Worried no longer by the problems of weight-making, grim-visaged Billy Petrolle thinks he has another headache in store for the betting fraternity. They've made him a short-end at 7 to 5 for his ten round non-title bout with Barney Ross, lightweight champion, at the Coliseum tomorrow night and Billy thinks that's a grave error.

The Duluth veteran, one of the greatest crowd-pleasers in the game as he is one of the heaviest of its slingers, has dropped all thoughts of winning the lightweight title since he absorbed successive defeats by Tony Canzoneri and Rose in November, 1932, and March, 1933.

Stone Ridgers Ready For Middie Tailors

Pete Bruck today stated his All Stars are ready for this weekly game at B. W. S. Hall, High Falls, Wednesday night, against the Middletown Clothiers, a team that is expected to give the Stone Ridge representatives one of the stiffest battles they have had all season. Bruck will use his regulars—Van Deusen and Chilson, forwards; Knoll, center; Wood and Cullum, guards. Starting time of the tilt is 8:45. There will be a preliminary at 7:45. Tommy Davitt has been engaged to referee again in place of Harold "Johnny" Johnson, who had to quit because of injuries in a fall. Following the games there will be a dance with music by Harry Meisner's Commanders.

National League scorers had a hard enough time keeping the Johnson boys straight when they were pitching for opposing clubs, but it'll be worse now that they've both wound up on the Cincinnati staff. Si (left) pitched some dazzling ball for the Reds last year, while Syl was obtained from the Cards in a deal this winter.

SPORT SLANTS By ALAN J. COULD

In a sport that puts as much strain on the legs as tennis, how do you account for the fact that you can still find your own with anyone on the courts while contemporaries such as Babe Ruth and Jack Dempsey, in other sports, have long passed the peak and tennis players, much younger, have failed to keep up your pace?

We heaved this somewhat involved proposition over the dinner table to the Bill Tilden in the midst of discussion as to his tour with Ellsworth Vines, who is 22 years old to Big Bill's 41.

"I can't answer that all in one breath," replied Tilden, "because there are a number of things involved. As a matter of fact I'm older than either Ruth or Dempsey and it has always been a source of pride to me to be able to outlast them in the competitive field. Because all three of us hit the top around the same time, soon after the war."

At any time he is preparing for a hard match Tilden abstains from smoking. He doesn't touch hard liquor to an extent worth mentioning, at any time. He conditions himself by playing tennis, not by going through any special routine of exercise. He eats heartily at all times. He is fond of the opera and the theatre, where in times past he has displayed his talents. Contract bridge is now one of his chief diversions and there are numerous friends of Big Bill to testify that he knows how to handle the cards.

When he first turned professional, promoters tore their hair in some alarm for the gate receipts, because Tilden handed Karel Kozeluh a consistent string of beatings. Yet they did not dare to suggest Big Bill "let up" for the sake of the ballyhoo and future engagements. They know better, if they know Tilden at all.

At the age of 41, Tilden is preparing to tour the country playing the foremost young American star developed in the last five years. Ellsworth Vines, and follow that up with a series of matches against Henry Cochet, the Frenchman that Big Bill places No. 1 in his personal all-time list. Cochet is just 32.

He figures at least to hold his own with both of these professional rivals but can you imagine Babe Ruth trying to slug it out with Jimmie Fox over the full major league stretch of 154 games or Jack Dempsey lasting 10 rounds against his protégé, Max Baer?

cadets. National Guard riders from Newark, Trenton, Hartford and other nearby places in New Jersey, New York and Connecticut will compete in order to test the jumps for their suitability for the outdoor West Point horse show next June.

A small admission charge will be made to cover incidental expenses.

BILLIARDS

Robert Moore, intermediate pocket billiard champion, and former three-time winner of the junior title, defeated two Kingston cue artists Monday night—Clifton Quick, junior champ of the city by 125-31 in 15 innings at Nick's and Benjamin Enniet, another local cue artist, 125-19 in 13 innings at the Elks' Club.

More, a fast shooter on the style of the famous Ralph Greenleaf, exhibited remarkable poise and control in handling the cue ball, thus prompting much applause from the 200 spectators that watched him at Nick's and from the gathering at the Elks'. High runs made by the intermediate king were 23 against Quick and 22 against Enniet. Neither of his opponents endangered his chances during the exhibition. However, after the scheduled match at the Elks Ben Enniet defeated Moore 15-14 in a 15 point three cushion match. Several weeks ago he lost by the close margin of 23-25 to Willie Hoppe, one of the game's greats.

The next billiard star to be brought here through the efforts of Nick Kaslich and the Elks in collaboration with the National Billiard Association, anxious to promote interest in the pastime, is Jimmy Caras, runnerup to Ralph Greenleaf in 1932.

Historical Significance Marks White House Trees

Nowhere in America can be found assembled so many trees with historical significance as on the grounds of the White House, asserts a writer in the Washington Post.

Nearly 80 large trees surround the historic mansion, framing its dignity with their beauty. Most of them are typically American deciduous trees—oaks, elms, ashes, maples, lindens and beeches—although there are a number of evergreens. There is a mulberry tree an exotic which casts a spell of the Far East over the grounds with the exquisite fragrance of its blossoms. There are Japanese cherry trees with their delicately colored flowers, the flowering almond, the storax, the varnish tree and the Japanese witchhazel. A willow adds its grace and a Persian lilac opens its blossoms in the summer.

On the grounds, too, is a beautiful white birch—the tree chosen nationally to honor motherhood. This tree was planted in 1924 by the American Forestry association in honor of the mothers of the Presidents.

But those trees that stand as monuments to great Presidents and great statesmen hold in their aged trunks the real secret to the glory of the White House grounds.

The Elizabethan Period

An authority says of the Elizabethan period: "The Age of Elizabeth was a time of intellectual liberty, of growing intelligence and comfort among all classes, of unbounded patriotism, of peace at home and abroad. For a parallel we must go back to the Age of Pericles in Athens, or of Augustus in Rome, or go forward a little to the magnificent court of Louis XIV, when Corneille, Racine and Moliere brought the drama in France to the peak where Marlowe, Shakespeare and Jonson had left it in England half a century earlier. Such an age of great thought and great action, appealing to the eyes as well as to the imagination and intellect, finds but one adequate literary expression; neither poetry nor the story can express the whole man, his thought, feeling, action, and the resulting character; hence in the age of Elizabeth literature turned instinctively to the drama and brought it rapidly to the highest stage of its development."

Effect of California Earthquake
According to the report of the commission appointed to investigate the origin of the San Francisco earthquake, there was a displacement along a very extensive and well marked fault line that extends to several hundred miles to a slight angle with the coast line. Movement known to have taken place along this line for a distance of 185 miles, was a shift of the ground on opposite sides of the fault of from 6 to 20 feet. The country to the southwest of the line was permanently displaced westwardly with reference to that on the opposite side. All effects of the shock diminished gradually with distance from this fault line. At a distance of 20 miles only an occasional change was thrown down, at 75 miles there were no destructive effects.

Snow, Hail, Rain
 Covered Kingston

Monday evening snow began falling in Kingston which soon changed to hail, and which was later followed by rain which fell throughout the night and during the early hours of today. The combination storm made the roads very slippery and during the night the board of public works sanded down the hills of the city to make them safe for auto traffic.

This morning when residents
 awoke it was to find their sidewalks covered with about half an inch of slush, which made walking very disagreeable. In spots where ice had not been removed from the walks pedestrians had hard work keeping from falling.

The police department received a number of complaints in regard to slippery walks and householders are urged to use sand or ashes on sidewalks to prevent accidents.

Attorney Withdraws In Robbery Case

trial and asked for two weeks to get counsel.

To this Mr. Murray replied that it would not require two weeks to get counsel as there was plenty of lawyers who were not working and who would be glad to take the case.

Judge Traver told Shirley Kahn that he was going to give the defendants an opportunity to get new counsel but he was not going to grant any such time as two or three weeks to get counsel. He instructed her to tell the defendants to proceed immediately to get counsel and be prepared for trial next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. She said the defendants had never been notified of the decision of Judge Foster on the motion to change the place of trial and they had believed the case would not be reached until the next term of court.

Mr. Murray then asked the court to inquire whether the other defendants were in court and to instruct them that they too should get new counsel. He said he did not desire to bring back his witnesses and the large panel of jurors next Monday only to be met then by the claim of the other two defendants that they would require time to get counsel. Judge Traver called Peter Cohen and Moe Rand. They stood up and he instructed that they must get new counsel and appear in court next Monday with counsel prepared for trial.

After instructing them to appear prepared for trial the matter was adjourned until next Monday at 2 o'clock.

Jurors were excused until that time. Court recessed until Wednesday at 2 without a jury.

At The Theatres

Today.

Kingston: "Hiding Down to Rio." Speaking of musical extravaganzas, it is a useful tip to the fact that about three or four of the most important value of that type "staged mostly in the clouds, gorgeous gaudy dancing on the wings of giant planes in flight southward and stage steps a cast of thousands, ten songs, no plot to speak of, and a talented cast headed by Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, Dolores Del Rio, Gene Raymond and Paul Robeson, all combine to make this a spectacle to witness and near on the Kingston Theatre screen. The "Carolina," the new dance step of Brazil, is also featured against a background of hot South American rhythm. Some of the dance scenes are unbelievably lovely, and the sets are always exceptional and different. The direction was by Thornton Freeland. Grand entertainment.

Orpheum: "What Price Innocence" and "Before Morning." What happens when a young girl doesn't know what it's all about seems to be the theme of the first talkie. Her ignorance of the facts of life leads her into misery, disgrace and suffering during the course of the film. Jean Parker and Minna Gombell lead the cast. "Before Morning" stars Leo Carillo, is a night life and man about town story with Lora Baxter and Taylor Holmes in the supporting cast.

Broadway: "Lady Killer." James Cagney as nervous as ever, goes through all kinds of new tricks in this his latest talkie. In this one, Mr. Cagney is a "finger man" for a band of thieves, and he breaks away from the mob and tries his luck at Hollywood and the talkie. He climbs to the top of the ladder, is a big success, when along come his old pals, determined to keep him one of them. His career is almost wrecked because of their efforts to make him see their point of view. Mr. Cagney kicks women around in his usual fashion during the course of this picture, and there are also some good laughs. The show is entirely Mr. Cagney's, but Mae Clarke and Margaret Lindsay share honors in the feminine leads. The picture was directed by Roy Del Ruth. Leslie Fenton is also featured in the large cast. Cagney fans will find this one of his best offerings.

Tomorrow

Kingston: "Convention City." Joan Blondell, Adolphe Menjou, Dick Powell, Mary Astor, Frank McHugh, Patricia Ellis, Guy Kibbee, Sheila Terry, and Ruth Donnelly all have important assignments in this mad, laughter-ridden talkie of a convention in Atlantic City. All kinds and manner of people from different parts of the country come to Atlantic City to participate in the convention and its activities. Joan Blondell is a gold digger, out to grab off some heavy dough, and Dick Powell is a youthful conventionite who falls under her charm. It takes the lives of numerous other characters, all attending the convention, and brings out their hopes and desires while at the show. The show is a mad, laughter-ridden talkie of a convention in Atlantic City. All kinds and manner of people from different parts of the country come to Atlantic City to participate in the convention and its activities.

Oil Discovery

The first successful oil well in the United States was drilled for Col. Edwin L. Drake by a driller named "Uncle" Billy Smith and his two sons, in 1859. Work began on May 20 and oil was struck at a depth of 69½ feet on August 28. Of course this was not the first discovery of oil in this country. The Indians had used it for centuries. Tradition has it that long ago a Seneca Indian squaw dipped her blanket in oil creek in Pennsylvania in the vain endeavor to transfer to it the life-giving hues of the floating oil; though it did not color the blanket, this oil when squeezed out was used by the Indians for other purposes. In 1927 the tercentenary of the discovery of oil by a white man in this country was celebrated at Cuba, N. Y. A Franciscan missionary, Father Joseph de la Roche D'Alfon, in 1917 was shown an oil well by the Indians near this place.

American Humane Association

The American Humane association is a consolidation of various societies, formed at Cleveland, Ohio, in 1877, becoming a national organization for the prevention of cruelty to animals and children. The initial work of the society was to regulate the abuses in cattle transportation by the railroads, and to secure the passage of state laws looking to this end. It offered a prize of $5,000 for the best model of a cattle car that would make possible the feeding, watering, and resting of cattle in transit, and many improved cattle cars were brought into use. Prizes for essays on vivisection, its abuses and their remedy were also offered for competition in 1900 among college and medical students. Since 1913 the societies represented in the association number over 300 with an aggregate membership of 141,000.

Board Of Managers Present Its Reports

general matters and attempt to present the picture and purposes motivating the efforts of those entrusted with the stewardship of this Home.

During the year there has been splendid harmony and cooperation between the Home and among the members of the board of managers. I wish to express to the matron, Mrs. Parae, and all members of the working staff, and also to the officers, chairmen and members of the various committees of the board, my sincere appreciation of the efficient manner in which they have performed their various duties and responsibilities.

The ladies on the monthly visiting committee have successfully reported on conditions in the Home and all have spoken of the cordial welcome they received at every door and of the many expressions of appreciation and contentment.

It has been a difficult year financially and Donation Day gifts were not as numerous or as large as formerly, but the Home staff has labored to keep down the cost of maintenance to as low a figure as is consistent with the comfort and needs of so large a family. The gifts that have been made to the Home are doubly appreciated in a time of depression, when gifts often mean a real sacrifice, and we wish to thank all who contributed in any way of time or money or other gifts. Especially are we grateful to the many friends who have remembered the individual members of the family with flowers, fruit, magazines and other gifts, all of which bring much comfort and pleasure.

The spiritual life of the Home has been promoted by the different ministers, and their coming is always eagerly anticipated whether to conduct services or to make personal calls. The physicians have met many calls upon their time and skill with ready response, giving the best of care and treatment to bring back health and happiness.

Death has taken several members from our family during the year. From the staff has gone our faithful and much loved manager, J. H. Davis, who has energetically and devotedly served the Home from its small beginning to the present time. From our board, one of its original managers, Mrs. John Foreyth, has been taken. It was she who was instrumental in securing the Stephanie Metz memorial gift incorporated in the present building. From the board of trustees we have lost several active and devoted members. In their place we have been fortunate in securing as vice presidents Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck and George S. Howells, as secretary, F. B. Matthews, and as treasurer W. M. Mills, and also welcome other new members to the board.

Our Home is filled to capacity and it is a matter of regret that we cannot at the present receive the many who are on the waiting list. In order to meet the cost of running the Home not only large but small gifts are deeply appreciated. It is mainly by the accumulation of smaller do-

"Artist's Proofs" Often

Cloud Value of Etching

The Evolution of Art says regarding "artist's proofs" of etchings: "When the design is completed the back and sides of the plate are protected by varnish and the face subjected to the action of acid, usually by putting it into an acid bath. The action of the acid, of course, will be only along the lines where the copper has been laid bare by the etcher's needle, and the artist must be very exact in his judgment as to how long to leave the plate in the acid bath. When the lines that are to be lightest in his print are sufficiently bitten, he takes the plate out and covers those lines with stopping-out varnish, then puts it back for further biting of the darker lines. This process is repeated until the darkest lines are bitten to the desired depth. The etching ground and varnish are then cleaned off, the plate inked and a proof pulled. If the proof does not satisfy the artist, he covers the plate with a transparent ground that leaves the design visible and makes such changes as he wishes and again immerses the plate in the bath. These 'artist's proofs,' which are, of course, rare prints, since often not more than one is made, are sometimes very valuable, throwing an interesting light on the artist's work, even though the final state of the plate may be much finer."
